Arkansas Town Threatened by Flood Waters

By The Associated Press

At least seven Arkansas rivers were flooding thousands of acres of farmlands today but the state hoped for a respite from other weather damage.

A twister reportedly struck a central Arkansas farm yesterday and a thin slice of southwest Arkansas was under a tornado warning for seven hours.

The tornado was reported by a farmer near Carlisle in Lonoke County. Raymond Schroeder said he got his family and some farm workers into a storm cellar before the twister toppled several huge storage bins, ripped up fences and damaged utility poles on his property.

No one was hurt. Extreme southwest Arkansas, including El Dorado, was under a tornado warning from 4 p. m. to 11 p. m. yesterday. When the U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock lifted the alert on schedule, no damage had been reported, and apparently no funnels had been seen in the area.

Schroeder, whose farm is 10 miles south of Carlisle, said he saw a black funnel. No warning had been issued for the area and state police said they had reports only of high winds.

The White and Little Red rivers threatened the little town of Georgetown in northeast Arkansas today and some other streams continued to flood farmland, but Arkansans expected some respite from further violent weather.

For a change, northwest Arkansas points reported snow early today. That section of the state, hit by flash floods after violent thunderstorms Tuesday and Wednesday, generally reported a heavy fall but it was not sickening at most points.

There was one unofficial report of a twister in east Arkansas last night.

The White, Little Red, Black and Ouachita rivers continued to flood thousands of acres of farmland and many highways remained impassable.

The worst of the floods was over for many points; for others, the crests will not come for four or five days.

The White County Chapter of the Red Cross wanted residents of Georgetown, a low-lying town of 250 people near where the Little Red River flows into the White to be ready to evacuate in case the rivers continue to rise. Mrs. J. C. Hart, Sarey Red Cross official, said that there was no river measurement report available from Georgetown.

The danger seemed to have passed Heber Springs, located further up the Little Red. The river yesterday crested there at 47.9—flood stage is 24— and was dropping today.

A spokesman for the U. S. Engineers at Heber Springs said that the river had been higher only once—when it reached 51.1 feet in 1929.

There was considerable damage to crops and livestock at Heber Springs and Batesville and at other points along the Black, Little

Christian Church Is Remodeling

First Christian Church of Hope is in the process of redecorating the sanctuary of the church building at North Main and Avenue B.

Among improvements are complete re-carpeting and refinishing of the floors. The re-carpeting of the sanctuary was undertaken by the Service Class, a class of women in the Church School. Individual members contributed to the sanding and re-finishing of the floors.

Church services have been held in the Fellowship Hall for the past two Sundays, however the service will be held in the sanctuary this Sunday, according to an announcement by William E. Harris, pastor.

Guests at the Sunday morning service, scheduled for 10:50 this coming Sunday will be the girls of the Order of the Rainbow, who will be seated in a body. The subject of the sermon by the Pastor will be "Jesus Christ, the Way." All members and friends of the church are urged to be present.

Man Can Scan 20,000 Words in One Minute

By H. M. ROYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — You've heard a lot about private eyes. But Ed Haupt probably has America's swiftest public eyes. A sort of prose detective and big name hunter, he is perhaps the nation's fastest reader.

"I can scan up to 20,000 words a minute," admitted Haupt who gallops through the pages of scores of publications daily for the U. S. Press Clipping Service. After 20 years in the business, Haupt, a mild-mannered, slow-talking family man who lives in Yonkers, is the acknowledged kingpin. Most of the 400 professional newspaper readers who work for the U. S. Press Clipping Service are women.

They regard Haupt with something akin to awe. Few can read at even half his pace.

As he reads, Haupt marks any mention of the names of some 8,000 people, products and com-

The officials said Swiss approval of Taylor's appointment was requested by U. S. Chargé d'Affaires William Blue early in March and was formally given last Friday.

Meet April 11 on Commercial Egg Production

A commercial egg meeting will be held Thursday April 11 at 7:15 p. m. at Hope City Hall. It was announced today by John Randolph, General Manager of Corn Belt Hatcheries. The meeting is open to the public.

In making the announcement Mr. Randolph reported farmers in the area already have signed up for 26,000 laying hens since the first announcement was made last January.

"There has been a tremendous interest in this program. We simply haven't had the time or the manpower to sit down and visit with each interested farmer," he said.

We hope to be able to answer many of the questions folks might have at the meeting next Thursday. Questions on building construction, equipment and financing. We intend to outline the entire Commercial Egg Program at this meeting and give a report on the progress made so far," he added.

Featured on the program will be a number of farmers who already have their laying houses built and arrangements completed. These men will give a report on the problems encountered in building houses and arranging for equipment and finances. They will tell how they solved these problems and what their actual costs were.

The Commercial Egg Program was announced two months ago by Corn Belt Hatcheries. According to this program, Corn Belt furnishes Hy-Line chicks at day old, the feed and remedies they consume during the growing and laying periods and assumes the risks connected with egg marketing, egg prices and feed prices. The farmer provides the chicken houses, equipment, labor, litter and utilities. The farmer is paid for each egg produced.

The initial phases of the program call for the placement of 100,000 laying hens in Southwest Arkansas. Eggs will be marketed by Corn Belt Hatcheries in New Orleans, Houston and Dallas as "Southland Eggs."

Army Controls Haiti Until Elections

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Haiti's nine presidential candidates today could not agree whether any or all of them would govern the Negro Caribbean republic until national elections April 28 take place.

The army, meanwhile, held firm control after the ouster of Franck Sylva, third provisional president in four months. Brig. Gen. L. M. Cantave, chief of staff, proclaimed the army's neutrality in the political squabble and left it up to the candidates to agree on a fourth provisional government.

Life once more returned to normal in Port au Prince after the strikes, business boycotts and street demonstrations which forced Sylva out Tuesday.

The newest ex-President was a suburban house under heavy guard. He is suspected of complicity in an alleged bomb plot against one presidential candidate — to advance the candidacy of Dr. Francois Duvalier.

Figinoe, Duvalier and Sen. Louis Delio are the leading candidates for the presidency. Last weekend Figinoe and Delio organized the demonstrations against Sylva in the claim he was rigging the election in favor of Duvalier.

Yesterday, however, Delio proposed that Figinoe and Duvalier join him in a governing triumvirate. Figinoe advocated a "council of ministers" made up of all the candidates.

The candidates met a "inter-vals into the night. The Haitian Congress, dissolved last week by Sylva, was reinstated to control whatever was decided.

Ejected Quartet Bombs Bar, Six Persons Killed

By DEAN GAUTSCHY
LOS ANGELES, (UP) — Four angry men who have been rejected from a cocktail bar tossed an oversized homemade gasoline bomb into the crowd cafe-saloon shortly before midnight last night, killing six persons and injuring three others.

Police called it "mass murder" and broadcast an all-points bulletin for the four men who were removed from the establishment twice during the evening, once during a fracas involving a woman customer, and then returned "to get even" by hurling the gasoline through the front door.

One of the four ignited the fuel, which reacted like a bomb by blasting open doors and windows and melting bar stools among the terror-stricken patrons.

The coroner's office reported five men and one woman died in the explosion that demolished the fence and created a panic. The dead were tentatively identified as Antonio M. Smalindio, 27; Harry Robinson, 60; Philip E. Canshaw, 29; Gilbert Gonzalez, 20, and Jacqueline A. McInnes, 21, the woman, all of Los Angeles. A fifth man was still to be identified, his body charred beyond recognition.

Earlier firemen said seven bodies had been taken from the blackened cafe but one of the persons believed dead, Mrs. Barbara Spiell, survived but was hospitalized with burns over most of her body.

Police immediately combed the city for the four men who stood at the cafe door and tossed the five-gallon can filled with gasoline to the floor. One of the trio tossed a lighted match on the toppled can and the cafe and the entire block rocked with a terrific explosion.

Witnesses said patrons stumbled from the flaming cafe with their clothes on fire.

Police Inspector Thomas Reddin said the four men had been in the cafe earlier, but were ordered to leave by Larry Tinton, the bartender, because they couldn't produce proper identification. California law requires a person to be at least 21 years old in order to be served liquor.

Witnesses said the men fled after one threw the match that touched off the explosion.

Officers said Vernon Waggy, a customer in the bar who escaped injury, fired three shots at the fleeing suspects but each bullet hit a parked car.

Police said the patrons in the cafe trampled over the dead and injured in a mad scramble for safety. It was believed the victims were knocked to the floor during the panic and were then burned to death.

Cafe Owner William Norman said he had just been negotiating the sale of the cafe — a small neighborhood bar. Officers estimated that about 20 persons were crowded around the bar slipping drinks when the explosion took place.

The blast touched off a fire in the cafe but the blaze was quickly extinguished by firemen.

"The building is completely gutted," said one fireman. "We had a hard time finding the bodies with all that blackened debris around."

U. S. Reports Nuclear Blast by Russia

WASHINGTON, (UP) — The United States announced today that Russia conducted another nuclear weapons test last Wednesday.

The brief announcement by Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission said the test was another in Russia's "current series" but did not specify the size of the bomb or whether one or more bombs were exploded.

It said only: "The Soviet Union on April 3, 1957, conducted another nuclear weapons test in its current series."

The test also was announced by the British Defense Ministry in London in an even more terse fashion. The Defense Ministry's announcement said merely that the Soviet Union carried out another nuclear test on Wednesday.

The announcement here was the 19th by the United States disclosing various Soviet nuclear explosions since he first Russian shot in September, 1949.

Many of the announcements have referred to a series of explosions rather than to individual shots. Russia thus has exploded more than 19 weapons.

According to informed sources, the United States has exploded at least 75 weapons. Great Britain has tested nine and soon will explode her first H-bomb in the Christmas Island area some 1,300 miles south of Hawaii.

Commerce Dept. Funds Slashed by 25 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee today slashed 25 per cent from President Eisenhower's requests for new Commerce Department funds.

The committee recommended $538,685,060 in new appropriations for the department and related agencies for the fiscal year starting next July 1. This was $217,627,940 less than Eisenhower requested and $68,950,076 below appropriations for the current year.

The committee apparently was mindful of what happened on its last bill, financing the Labor and Welfare departments. It cut 118 million dollars from that measure only to have the house itself slash off an extra 15 millions. Still another 63 millions. Still another 53 millions tentatively cut by the House was restored on roll call votes yesterday.

The commerce department measure was the sixth annual money bill sent to the house this year by the committee and showed well over the billion-dollar mark the aggregate cuts in appropriations requested by the President.

Actually, the savings claimed by the committee in the Commerce Department measure are larger than the direct cut in new funds, for the committee canceled $60,251,000 of balances in the War Shipping Administration's work fund which otherwise could have been spent. The committee ordered the balances turned back into the Treasury.

The biggest single slice in funds was 9 1/2 million dollars from the 94 1/2 millions requested by the Maritime Administrations or ship construction. Another 20 millions was cut from the amount asked for ship operating subsidies.

The only agencies for which significant program increases over 1957 were recommended here the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Weather Bureau.

Eisenhower's money requests contemplated an increase of 7,126 permanent positions for the Commerce Department and 373 new jobs in the smaller related agencies. The committee approved 4,638.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration's allotment of $328,325,600 included 177,747,000 for operation and regulation and would provide for employment of 3,350 technicians to handle the steadily increasing flow of airway traffic.

The committee said it recognized the need for economy in government but was influenced by "the primary consideration" of maximum safety in flight.

Extending its approval of $116,501,660 for establishment of air navigational facilities, the committee said the urgency for installing these facilities is underscored by the increase in jet flying.

The labor-welfare bill, passed yesterday by voice vote and sent to the Senate, was the fifth annual appropriation bill cleared this year by the House. None has passed the Senate.

Its total of $2,846,831,581 was $134,446,000 less than Eisenhower had requested.

Biggest setback for the budget-cutters was restoration by a 231-185 roll-call vote of 50 million dollars earmarked for aid to municipalities for construction of waste disposal plants.

Smaller reductions in funds for the Bureau of Veterans' Re-employment Rights, the Women's Bureau, the Food and Drug Administration and the Office of Education likewise were restored on roll calls.

As it headed for the Senate, the bill allotted $2,483,381,461 to the Welfare Department, a cut of $98,578,000; and $349,060,200 to the Labor Department, a reduction of $95,617,800.

The rest of the money was earmarked for several small agencies.

The commander of one of three French units said his troops killed 33 rebels. French spokesmen said 200 rebels were killed yesterday in operations throughout Algeria.

Extra $17 Million for Post Office Gets Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee today informally approved a 17-million-dollar extra appropriation for the Post Office and agreed to consider next Friday a request for 30 millions more.

Implied in the committee's action was an understanding that the department would not put into effect tomorrow sharp service curtailments which Postmaster General Summerfield had said would be ordered if extra money was not provided at once.

The department has requested congress to give it an extra 47 million dollars for the next three months. An appropriations subcommittee approved 17 millions of the request last Wednesday.

Summerfield said that was inadequate, and announced that starting tomorrow he would order such steps as to halt city and rural mail deliveries on Saturdays and step selling money orders.

He has said unforeseen expenses stemmed from increased mail volume and the need to serve expanding residential areas.

When the Appropriations Committee met today to consider the annual money bill for the Commerce Department, most Republicans and some Democrats favored immediate action on the Post Office funds, but a motion to consider the matter was ruled out of order.

Finally, however, after a reportedly tempestuous session, the committee agreed to notify Summerfield he could count on at least 17 million dollars and that the committee would consider how much more, if any, to give him at a meeting next Friday.

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) told newsmen it would be up to the full committee to decide how much money to appropriate. Indications were that a majority of members favored more money, 17 millions although not the entire 47 millions Summerfield seeks.

Any decision the committee makes still is subject to approval by the full house and by the Senate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Summerfield has made a renewed plea for more funds to avoid a drastic cutback in mail services, starting tomorrow.

There was no indication whether Congress would heed his appeal.

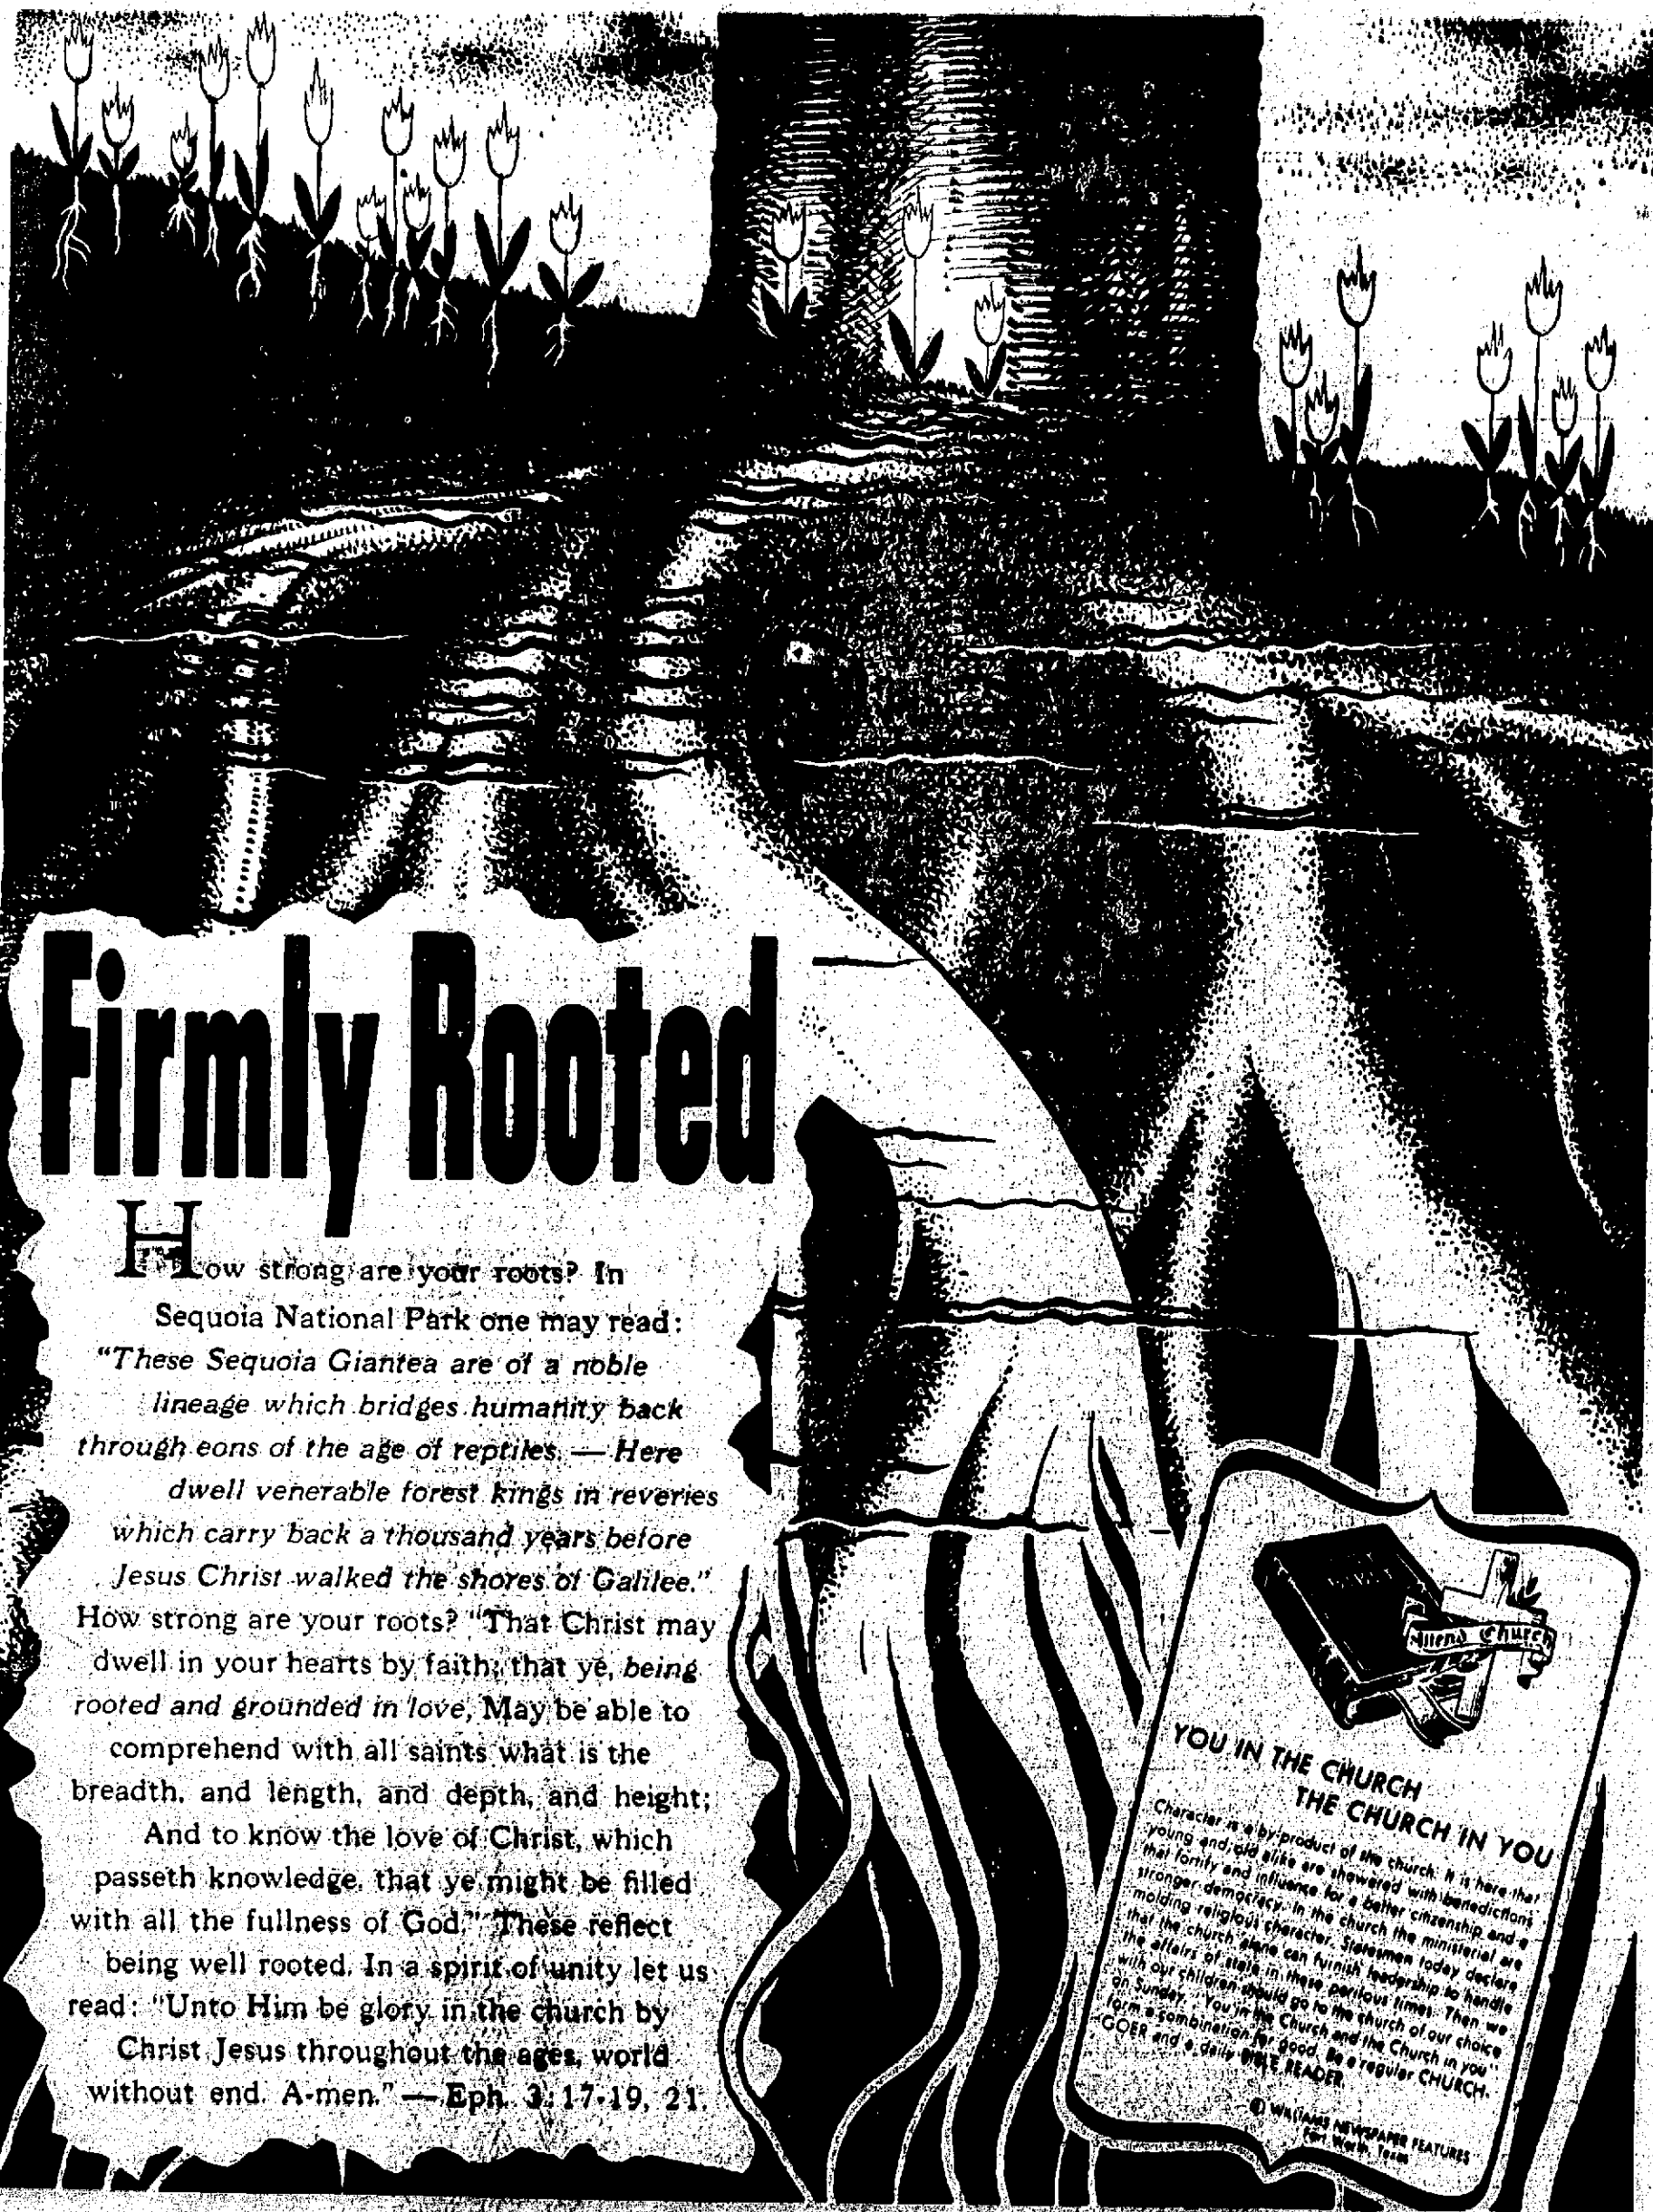

Summerfield contends he needs 47 million dollars to carry on postal operations at present levels during the remaining three months of this fiscal year. He has said unforeseen expenses stemmed from increased mail volume and the need to serve widening residential areas.

A House Appropriations subcommittee (this week recommended only 17 millions of that amount, despite word from Summerfield that he planned to curtail services unless he got the 47 millions.

Last night, Summerfield sent a telegram to Chairman

There's No Evil There Except What You Carry With You.

Firmly Rooted

How strong are your roots? In Sequoia National Park one may read: "These Sequoia Giantes are of a noble lineage which bridges humanity back through eons of the age of reptiles. — Here dwell venerable forest kings in reveries which carry back a thousand years before Jesus Christ walked the shores of Galilee." How strong are your roots? "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God." These reflect being well rooted. In a spirit of unity let us read: "Unto Him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout the ages, world without end. Amen." — Eph. 3:17-19, 21.

Sunday School Lesson

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
Meditating recently on the last judgment, and consulting the commentators concerning it, I became strongly impressed with the fact that there are three areas, or stages, in the New Testament, each to a certain extent somewhat clearly marked from the others. And, I think it may be said, commanding its own particular interest and importance.

The first of these areas is that of narrative and teaching; the story of the life and sayings of Jesus in the four Gospels, with His presentation of the Gospel itself in the parables. In particular, the Parables of the Prodigal Son, the Lost Sheep, and the Lost Piece of Silver (Luke 15).

With this are such plain statements of the commandments of love, and such parables of love and service in conduct as in the parable of the Good Samaritan and in such illuminating stories as that of the Pharisee and the Publican, and the "woman which was a sinner" (in Luke 7:36-50).

To this narrative area must be added the Book of Acts and other passages having to do with the founding of the Christian churches, and the spread of Christianity in the ancient world.

The second area, based upon the narrative portions, has to do with interpretation of the Gospel, and expositions and discussions of the relation of new Christian conceptions to Jewish matters of ritual law and sacrifice.

This obviously occupies a large part of the Pauline Epistles, and the Book of Hebrews, though it is not confined to these.

I think that in Paul's writings a distinction might be made between theological argument, matters of conduct and discipline, such as the position of women in the church, on the one hand, and, on the other hand, passages such as I Corinthians 13, the chapter on "charity," and the beautiful prayers and doxologies, as in Ephesians 3, and elsewhere.

In this area also would be the Epistles of James, Peter, and John, in which the Epistles of Paul, particularly stand as the outstanding commentary on the meaning of the love that Jesus commanded.

The third area is in the parts of the New Testament that deal with eschatology, or the "last things." Of these the most impressive passages are chapters 24 and 25 in the Gospel by Matthew, and, of course, the entire Book of Revelation.

No adjectives of "awesomeness," magnificence, and splendor are equal to describing the flaming imagery of that book.

But, like many others, and conflicting interpreters and commentators, I am in much doubt concerning the meaning beneath the symbolism and the imagery.

I have been blessed, or cursed with an unspeculative mind. I like things direct and solid. So, to me, the Gospel as Jesus Himself proclaimed it in His parables, example and teaching

Wife in a Tizzy Because His Ex-Girl Still Writes

Dear Dorothy Dix: We've been married for three years and have built up a nice business. I do all the inside work; my husband goes out selling and collecting.

He was overseas four years ago and has a baby by a woman to whom he was not married. The woman writes to him, and in some of the letters I've seen mentions how much she'd like to come to the States.

Lately, some of my husband's friends, who were with him in Germany, have been talking about "when" the woman could get here, leading me to believe that a lot has taken place without my knowledge. Another thing, my husband has been collecting very little money lately. He says people aren't paying him, which is very unusual.

is more important than discussions concerning it.

Similarly, to me, present things, the experience of God's grace, and the effort to lead the Christian life, are of more importance than the future speculation and mystery.

I would not deny to others what comfort and joy they may find in concentration upon the parts of the Bible that are of most doubtful interpretation. I would not take away a single page.

But I still believe that the Bible's supremacy is to set above all else the life and teaching of Jesus as revealed in the four Gospels, and the Master's own proclamation of the Gospel in His words and deeds.

The Arkansas was scheduled to stay well within its banks. Crests of 19 feet for Little Rock late today and 20-21 feet for Pine Bluff tomorrow were forecast by the U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock.

For the four overflowing rivers, the weather bureau issued this forecast:

The White will fall at Batesville and above; a crest of 30 feet at Newport tomorrow. Newport now reports 26 feet, which is flood stage, and a rise of half a foot in 24 hours. A crest of 34-35 feet Sunday at Augusta; crest of 29-30 at Georgetown Monday; crest of 28-29 at Des Arc Tuesday, and 33-34 Thursday at Clarendon.

The White at Clarendon was at 24 feet, two below flood stage, after a rise of almost a foot in 24 hours.

The weather bureau said that the Black will crest of 22 feet at Pochontas on Monday, and slightly over 27 at Black Rock tomorrow.

Who rates what for performance and smoother riding in the low-priced three? Chevrolet has laid the answer and the proof on the line!

First, Chevrolet won the Auto Decathlon over every car in its field, and over the higher priced cars that were tested, too. This rugged ten-way test (right, below) showed Chevrolet was the champ in handling ease, braking, acceleration, passing ability, smoothness of ride and other driving qualities you want in a car.

Then, Chevy won the Pure Oil Performance Trophy at Daytona (left, below) as "best performing U. S. automobile."

It's quite a feeling to know that you are driving a car that performs so well, responds so beautifully and is so finely built. You feel proud, of course. But you also enjoy a surer, smoother, steadier way of going, a keen cat-quick response of power, and the easiest handling you've ever experienced behind a wheel. Just try this Chevrolet (V8 or Six) and see!

Burglars Get $1,678 From Weiner Bank

WEINER, Mo. — Burglars broke into the vault of the Bank of Weiner last night, using tools taken earlier in a burglary of a nearby supply company, and took $1,678.20.

Sheriff C. T. Sullivan said the thieves unsuccessfully tried to open a safe, where most of the bank's money was kept inside the vault, and failed in an attempt to open a safe at the Carl Well Supply Co., located immediately behind the bank.

Harold Winters, vice president, said bank officials had been able to count the bank's loss — most of it in half dollars and "after-hours" money which had been placed inside the vault. But, he said, it could not be determined immediately what was taken from safety deposit boxes which the burglars broke open.

Contents of the safety deposit boxes — deeds and other papers — were left scattered about the vault and other rooms of the bank. Sheriff Sullivan said bank officials were unable to open the battered safe and a "safe expert" would be called in.

Man Drowns on Lake at Conway

CONWAY, Mo. — A 45-year-old man drowned in sight of hundreds of horrified spectators at Lake Conway yesterday after he had jumped from a motorboat drifting toward a spillway.

The victim was identified as Wesley Crump of the Republican community near Greenbrier. Another man who jumped out of the boat was rescued unharmed.

Conway police said early today that Crump's body has not been recovered.

When Crump and 28-year-old Elton Hart of Republican, leaped into the water, two other men stayed in the boat and later landed safely. They were Albert Palmer, 61, and his son, Vernon, 32, also of Republican.

A strong current took Hart and Crump downstream through the spillway and dropped them four feet into the rapids. They clung to some willows about 150 yards downstream.

Hart said Crump apparently was exhausted and let go his hold. He disappeared as hundreds of persons who had been fishing watched from the dam.

Young Palmer and a companion later rescued Hart by pulling him to the boat with a rope.

Nothing could have been less sinister than the appearance of that beautiful village. Now that he was close to it, Allan could see the tall houses, standing one behind the other in terraces up the rock, their shadows falling on the left of them as he looked. In front of the window sills were little balconies of wrought iron, many of them with window boxes; some of the windows were already shuttered, others still open to cool interiors. For all that the island and the point were rocky, beneath the boat, as Jules could see fine white sand, with here and there a wedged stone. He estimated the space between him and the horn of the island at 300 yards, and the highest point of the highest house on the rock as not more than 70 feet. It was a little jewel of a place, and he couldn't help wondering why it was so little advertised, and why he had only heard of it almost incidentally from the hotel and from Paleologue.

Jules Fernana gave one last vigorous twist to his scull, shipped it, and came to stand beside Allan as the boat lapped her way on to the one small stretch of sand which the islet seemed to boast.

"Al Merhametsiz was fond of this place!" he said softly. "I am glad that you are seeing it at last."

Two narrow streets, in deep shadow, gave access to the beach; and Allan could see that for every few yards of flat pavement there were steps climbing a little farther up the hillside. They had mounted almost to the top of the hill before Camille and Jules paused, and indicated that the court which they had reached was their destination.

Built as it was on the steep side of a hill, the flagged floor of the court open to the sky, was on two levels; they were separated by a low stone wall, and joined by a flight of shallow stone steps. The buildings enclosed all four sides, two stories at the higher level, there at the lower, and round the outside of each of the upper stories ran the usual balcony with wrought-iron balustrades. Two small boys, aged perhaps seven and five, ran joyfully at Camille and were caught up by him, one in either arm.

"My sons," he said, looking at Allan proudly. "This one, giving a little chuck with his left arm so that the boy moved up a few inches in the air, is Alexander; and this, repeating the process with the other, 'is Robert.'"

"I have a couple of boys, too," Allan said, not to be outdone. "Patrick and Hew!"

"How did you know?" exclaimed Allan.

"You will understand a great deal in the course of the next few minutes," said Camille, delighted at his success. Jules was grinning, too.

After Camille left, Jules said: "Just let me warn you. He has gone to see if my mother is ready to see you. She is old, but very sharp and wise; and she is all-powerful among the Sekougais. She can speak no English; and she refuses to speak French. Try not to anger her, remember she hates the French, and she is very proud of her lineage."

Camille came in, looking over his shoulder. "Here is my brother Georges," he said; and there entered the third Fernana.

He was unmistakably a brother of the other two; yet the beauty of his face was so striking that it was several seconds before Allan could pay attention to his disability. It was practically the Kaid himself, as he looked out of his picture on the stairs at Larg. The disability was not in the head, it was in the body. The shoulder seemed to have dropped, the left leg not grown long enough.

"My brothers have forestalled barriers or minefields will be placed along the Gaza Strip's borders with Israel."

The paper said the agreement was reached in negotiations on the functions of the U. N. Emergency Force in the strip.

Bunche stayed in Cairo to negotiate details after U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold reached a "gentlemen's agreement" with President Nasser during Hammarskjold's recent visit.

The paper said Bunche and the Egyptians agreed the Egyptian-Israeli armistice lines should be made to conform with the 1949 armistice ending the Palestine War, plus amendments to it in 1952 and 1954.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli army headquarters reported a long exchange of gunfire between Israelis and Syrians early today on the frontier of Lake Hula. No Israeli casualties were reported.

It was the fourth such clash along the lake since March 20, when violence erupted after months of relative quiet on the border.

Reporting another incident, the Israeli spokesman said infiltrators from Jordan attacked two Israeli frontier policemen last night near Ashdot Yaakov, six miles south of the Sea of Galilee. One Israeli policeman was reported wounded.

At U. N. headquarters in New York, Hammarskjold indicated he believed Egypt may let Israeli ships use the Suez Canal.

me in making your acquaintance," he said, "but I am glad to have met you at last. I had hoped that it might have been about two hours sooner."

"No doubt you know as well as I do," said Allan as warmly and openly as he could, "why that engagement wasn't fulfilled."

And Camille, by the look of him, was ill-pleased.

Another step was heard in the passage, and a servant girl appeared with the inevitable tray of coffee.

A minute or two after the coffee had been served, with startling suddenness a bell jangled just above their heads; and Allan, looking up, saw hanging incongruously upon the wall one of those quivering contraptions which the Victorian era installed in servants' passages, to indicate which bell had been rung.

Camille crossed the floor and left the room; but Jules also got up and Georges, more painfully. Allan finished his coffee and then rose also to his feet.

"My mother has been much looking forward to meeting you, ever since she heard that you were coming to Seknou," said Georges.

"How long ago did you hear?" asked Allan curiously.

"Three weeks?" he hazarded. "Three weeks, would you say, Jules?"

"About that," said Jules; and then they heard Camille's step coming quickly down the passage. He entered the room briskly.

"If you are ready," he said to Allan, "And she wants you to be present too," he said to his brothers. Allan could not but feel that he was about to be presented to one greater than Queen Victoria.

Studebaker Silver Hawk, one of 18 different models

What sort of people own Studebakers? Studebaker owners are individualists. They refuse to be satisfied with look-alike cars. They're alert to the extra value of Studebaker-Packard's many exclusives: a built-in Supercharger, the luxury ride of variable-rate springing, and Twin Traction, with drive power at both rear wheels. Most important, they're the people who got the facts on Studebaker. See your dealer today.
